

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IN RE: CATHODE RAY TUBE (CRT)
ANTITRUST LITIGATION

) MDL No. 1917

) Case No. C-07-5944-SC

_____
This Order Relates To:

ALL DIRECT PURCHASER ACTIONS

) ORDER ADOPTING IN PART AND ) MODIFYING IN PART SPECIAL ) MASTER'S REPORT AND ) RECOMMENDATION ON ) DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO ) DISMISS THE DIRECT ACTION
) PLAINTIFFS' COMPLAINTS
)
)
)

I. INTRODUCTION

Now before the Court are the Direct Action Plaintiffs' ("DAPs") and Defendants'<sup>1</sup> competing objections to and motions to adopt the Special Master's May 2, 2013 Report and Recommendation on Defendants' Motion to Dismiss the DAP Complaints.<sup>2</sup> The matter is fully briefed,<sup>3</sup> and the Court finds it appropriate for decision without oral argument. Civ. L.R. 7-1(b). As explained below, the Court ADOPTS in part and MODIFIES in part the Special Master's Report and Recommendation, and accordingly GRANTS IN PART and DENIES IN PART Defendants' motions to dismiss the DAP Complaints.

<sup>1</sup> The full list of DAPs and Defendants in this case is excessively long. Where necessary in this Order, the Court will address the arguments of particular groups of Defendants by name.

<sup>2</sup> The complaints at issue are: Stoebner v. LG Electronics, Inc., No. 11-cv-05381 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 7, 2011) ("Polaroid Compl."); Target Corp. v. Chunghwa Picture Tubes, Ltd., No. 11-cv-05514 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 9] (Jan. 6, 2012) ("Target Am. Compl."); P.C. Richard & Son Long Island Corp. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 12-cv-02648 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("P.C. Richard Compl."); Schultze Agency Servs., LLC v. Hitachi, Ltd., No.

II. BACKGROUND

The DAPs allege that Defendants, each a manufacturer of cathode-ray tubes ("CRTs"), conspired to fix prices for CRTs. The DAPs do not allege that Defendants conspired to fix the prices of products containing CRTs ("CRT Products").

Each DAP alleges that it bought at least one CRT product from a Defendant or an entity owned or operated by a Defendant. The DAPs, despite their moniker, are classified as indirect purchasers under antitrust law -- not direct purchasers.

---

12-cv-02649 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Tweeter Compl."); CompuCom Systems, Inc. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-06396 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("CompuCom Compl."); Interbond Corp. of Am. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-06275 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Interbond Compl."); Costco Wholesale Corp. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-06397 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Costco Compl."); Siegel v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-05502 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Circuit City Compl."); Office Depot, Inc. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-06276 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Office Depot Compl."); Best Buy Co., Inc. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-05513 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 1] (Nov. 14, 2011) ("Best Buy Compl."); and Electrograph Systems, Inc. v. Hitachi, Ltd., No. 11-cv-01656 (N.D. Cal.) [ECF No. 5] (Mar. 10, 2011) ("Electrograph Am. Compl.).

<sup>3</sup> ECF Nos. 1676 ("Defs.' Statement"), 1704 ("DAP Obj'ns: Philips & LG"), 1706 ("Defs.' Joint Obj'ns"), 1708 ("DAP Obj'ns: Joint"), 1749 ("DAP Mot. to Adopt"), 1750 ("LG Joinder"), 1752 ("Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt"), 1755 ("Philips Mot. to Adopt"), 1799 ("Defs.' Joint Reply"), 1800 ("DAP Reply: Philips & LG"), 1801 ("DAP Reply: Joint"). The underlying motions are, of course, fully briefed as well. ECF Nos. 1317 ("Defs.' MTD"), 1319 ("Philips MTD"), 1320 ("LG MTD Joinder"), 1384 ("Opp'n to Defs. MTD"), 1387 ("Opp'n to Philips MTD"), 1419 ("Reply ISO Philips MTD"), 1420 ("LG Joinder Re: Philips Reply"), 1422 ("Joint Reply ISO Defs.' MTD").

1 In August 2012, Defendants jointly filed a motion to dismiss
2 and a motion for judgment on the pleadings as to some of the DAP 3 complaints. Separately, Koninklijke Philips Electronics N.V. and 4 Philips Electronics North America Corp. (collectively "Philips ")
5 filed a similar motion, joined by LG Electronics, Inc. and LG
6 Electronics USA, Inc. (collectively ("LG")).

7 On February 15, 2013, the motions to dismiss came before this 8 case's Special Master for oral argument. See ECF No. 1707 ("J.A.") 9 Ex. 14 ("Tr."). The Special Master issued his Report and 10 Recommendation in this matter on May 2, which makes numerous 11 conclusions and recommendations that are summarized below. ECF No.
12 1664 ("R&R"). The parties then filed lengthy objections and 13 motions to adopt parts of the R&R.<sup>4</sup> Now they ask the Court to rule 14 on those requests.

15 16 III. LEGAL STANDARD

17 A. The Court's Review of the Special Master's Conclusions

18 The Court reviews the Special Master's conclusions of law de 19 novo. ECF No. 302 ("Order Appointing Special Master").

20 B. Motions to Dismiss

21 A motion to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
22 12(b)(6) "tests the legal sufficiency of a claim." Navarro v.
23 Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001). "Dismissal can be based 24 on the lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of 25 sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory."
26 Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir.

27
28 <sup>4</sup> The Court commends the parties' and the Special Master's cooperation and coordination on what all can agree has been a lengthy, complicated matter.

1 1988). "When there are well-pleaded factual allegations, a court 2 should assume their veracity and then determine whether they 3 plausibly give rise to an entitlement to relief." Ashcroft v.
4 Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679 (2009). However, "the tenet that a court 5 must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint 6 is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Threadbare recitals of the 7 elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory
8 statements, do not suffice." Id. at 678 (citing Bell Atl. Corp. v.
9 Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)). The allegations made in a 10 complaint must be both "sufficiently detailed to give fair notice 11 to the opposing party of the nature of the claim so that the party 12 may effectively defend against it" and "sufficiently plausible" 13 such that "it is not unfair to require the opposing party to be 14 subjected to the expense of discovery." Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d
15 1202, 1216 (9th Cir. 2011).

17 IV. DISCUSSION

18 A. Federal Claims

19 Each DAP asserts causes of action under the federal antitrust 20 laws. Federal antitrust plaintiffs normally have standing only if 21 they are direct purchasers of the allegedly price-fixed goods.
22 Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois, 431 U.S. 720 (1977). Indirect
23 purchasers generally do not have federal antitrust standing. See 24 Arizona v. Shamrock Foods Co., 729 F.2d 1208, 1211-12 (9th Cir.
25 1984). However, the Court held in Defendants' motion for summary 26 judgment against the Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs ("DPP") class that 27 indirect purchasers may have federal antitrust standing under the 28 "ownership or control" exception by establishing that they were

1 harmed by a price-fixing conspiracy between a manufacturer and an 2 entity it owns or controls. See In re CRT Antitrust Litig., 911 F.
3 Supp. 2d 857, 868-69 (N.D. Cal. 2012) (citing Royal Printing Co. v.
4 Kimberly Clark Corp., 621 F.2d 323 (9th Cir. 1980)).

5 The parties do not dispute that the Court's holding on the 6 ownership or control exception remains law of the case, thereby 7 compelling denial of Defendants' motion to dismiss the DAPs' 8 federal claims. Defendants seek to preserve their objections to 9 that holding for appeal, and to apply the Court's holdings denying 10 application of two other exceptions to the Illinois Brick rule, the 11 "co-conspirator" and "cost-plus" exceptions. The Special Master 12 accordingly recommended that the Court grant Defendants' motion to 13 the extent that it challenges the application of those two 14 exceptions, and deny the motion to the extent that it challenges
15 the DAPs' right to proceed under the ownership or control 16 exception. R&R at 5. The Court finds the Special Master's 17 conclusions on this matter appropriate and ADOPTS the Special 18 Master's recommendations. Id. Defendants' motion is GRANTED to 19 the extent that it challenges the DAPs' right to proceed under the 20 cost-plus or co-conspirator exceptions to Illinois Brick, and 21 DENIED to the extent that it challenges the DAPs' right to proceed 22 under the ownership or control exception.

23 This Order expresses no view as to whether the DAPs will be 24 able to prove what is needed to establish the ownership or control 25 exception. The Court also makes no ruling on the adequacy of the 26 DAPs' allegations of ownership and control.

27 ///

28 ///

1           B.     State Law Claims

2                   i.     Joint Motion to Dismiss Based on Statutes of 3                           Limitation

4           Nine of the twelve DAP Complaints were filed on approximately 5 November 14, 2011. R&R at 6. They allege violations of seventeen
6 states' laws. Id. Fourteen of those states have four-year
7 statutes of limitations on the DAPs' claims, and two have three-8 year statutes of limitations. Id. Accordingly, as the Special 9 Master found, any claim based on Defendants' actions before 10 November 14, 2007, is prima facie barred by those states' statutes
11 of limitations. Id. The parties disputed whether those statutes 12 of limitations should be tolled because of the tolling doctrines of 13 either fraudulent concealment or so-called "American Pipe" or 14 cross-jurisdictional tolling. Id. Defendants assert that 15 fraudulent concealment could not apply to toll the statutes of 16 limitation, because the DAPs had actual notice (or at least inquiry 17 notice) of the factual basis for their claims by November 8, 2007 18 at the earliest and November 14, 2007 at the latest. Id. The 19 Special Master found that Defendants' notice argument turned on 20 disputed issues of fact, not law. Id. He therefore recommended 21 that the Court deny Defendants' motion on this point as 22 inappropriate under Rule 12(b)(6). Id. The Special Master did not 23 reach the issue of American Pipe tolling. Id.

24           Defendants object to the Special Master's recommendation, 25 arguing that as a matter of law, the DAPs had a duty as of November 26 8, 2007, to inquire into whether they had claims against 27 Defendants. Defs.' Joint Obj'ns at 19-21. On that day, as the 28 European Commission issued a press release about certain Defendants

1 being raided in connection with a worldwide antitrust investigation
2 of CRT pricing. Id. at 19. According to Defendants, these raids
3 would have raised red flags impelling any reasonably diligent 4 person to investigate and act on possible antitrust claims. Id.
5 Indeed, more than thirty complaints were filed within six months of 6 those 2007 raids, and many specifically identify the raids as 7 triggering notice. Id. DAPs argue that the November 8, 2007 press 8 release was insufficient to put them on notice, because it did not 9 (1) "identify which category of illegal conduct it was 10 investigating"; (2) establish that there was a violation; (3) 11 identify the companies investigated; (4) indicate whether the 12 investigation related to products the DAPs purchased; or (5) 13 indicate whether United States commerce was affected. DAP Mot. to 14 Adopt at 14-15.

15 Defendants challenge all of these assertions, arguing that (1) 16 the press release indicated that the investigation was part of a 17 "cartel inquiry"; (2) the press release's language on cartels and 18 restrictive business practices should have raised an antitrust 19 flag; (3) DAPs themselves note that the CRT industry was dominated 20 by just a few companies, and other plaintiffs managed to figure out 21 who had been subject to investigation; (4) the press release 22 clearly referred to CRTs, and DAPs were some of the world's largest 23 CRT purchasers; and (5) DAPs alleged a global CRT market 24 conspiracy, which would necessarily include both the European and 25 United States markets. Defs.' Joint Reply at 10-11.

26 Defendants also argue that the R&R applies a higher notice
27 standard than is necessary in the Ninth Circuit. Defs.' Joint Mot.
28 at 20. They claim that the Ninth Circuit requires only that

1 "[w]here a plaintiff's suspicions have been or should have been 2 excited, there can be no fraudulent concealment where he could have 3 then confirmed his earlier suspicion by diligent pursuit of further 4 information," not that tolling continues until plaintiffs have 5 constructive notice and enough time to file a complaint. Id.
6 (quoting Conmar Corp. v. Mitsui & Co. (U.S.A.), Inc., 858 F.2d 499, 7 502 (9th Cir. 1988)).

8 The Court does not find Defendants' arguments persuasive.
9 They remain reliant on disputed facts. The Court therefore finds 10 the Special Master's conclusions correct and ADOPTS them. "[I]t is 11 generally inappropriate to resolve the fact-intensive allegations 12 of fraudulent concealment at the motion to dismiss stage, 13 particularly where the proof relating to the extent of the 14 fraudulent concealment is alleged to be largely in the hands of the 15 alleged conspirators." In re Rubber Chemicals Antitrust Litig., 16 504 F. Supp. 2d 777, 789 (N.D. Cal. 2007); see also Conmar, 858
17 F.2d at 504-05.

18 Further, the Special Master's discussion of constructive 19 notice had nothing to do with the standard of review he applied, 20 which ultimately looked to the difference between matters of fact 21 and matters of law under a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.

22 Finally, the Court finds that it need not address the issue of 23 American Pipe tolling, also called cross-jurisdictional tolling.
24 American Pipe & Construction Co. v. Utah, 414 U.S. 538, 554 (1974), 25 established that in some instances, filing a federal class action 26 tolls statutes of limitation on the individual claims of putative 27 class members, pending a decision on class certification. The 28 Special Master recommended in the R&R that it would be unnecessary

1 to consider American Pipe if the Court adopted the recommendation 2 on fraudulent concealment, since the cross-jurisdictional tolling 3 question is not dispositive and would require the Court to rule on 4 a messy array of non-binding, extra-jurisdictional case law and 5 policy arguments. R&R at 7. The Court agrees. There is no reason
6 to decide as a matter of law that cross-jurisdictional tolling 7 applies in this case.

8 ii. Joint Motion to Dismiss Based on Due Process

9 Defendants argue that subjecting them to state antitrust laws 10 would violate their right to due process, which demands significant 11 contacts between the parties or occurrences and the state whose law 12 is to be applied. See Defs.' Joint Reply at 2-5. The DAPs move to 13 adopt the Special Master's R&R denying Defendants' motion on this 14 point. DAP Mot. to Adopt at 3-6.

15 At the hearing before the Special Master, the parties both 16 argued that they were applying the legal standard from Allstate 17 Insurance Co. v. Hague, 449 U.S. 302 (1981), though on the day of 18 the hearing, the Ninth Circuit was to issue an opinion on the due 19 process applicability of California antitrust law to out-of-state
20 plaintiffs. See R&R at 9. The Ninth Circuit did so in AT&T
21 Mobility LLC v. AU Optronics Corp., 707 F.3d 1106 (9th Cir. 2013), 22 and the Special Master ordered supplemental briefing on that case's 23 applicability to the parties' arguments. After reviewing those 24 briefs and the record, the Special Master concluded that AT&T
25 broadened Allstate and compelled the denial of Defendants' motion 26 because application of a state's law would only violate due process 27 if the state has "no significant contact or significant aggregation 28 of contacts, creating state interests, with the parties and the

1 occurrence or transaction." R&R at 9 (citing AT&T, 707 F.3d at 2 1110). Since the due process theories Defendants had articulated 3 did not rely on that relatively broad standard -- instead,
4 Defendants would have limited territorial application of state law 5 to states where the DAPs purchased CRT Products or negotiated their 6 purchase -- the Special Master recommended that Defendants' motion, 7 as framed, should be denied. Id.

8 Defendants object to the Special Master's recommendations on 9 three grounds: (1) the R&R erroneously applied the AT&T standard to 10 the DAPs' California claims under the Cartwright Act, since the 11 DAPs provide only conclusory allegations about Defendants'
12 California-related conduct; (2) AT&T does not apply to the DAPs' 13 claims for other states' laws, since that case was limited to 14 discussion of California's Cartwright Act alone; and (3) even if 15 AT&T applied to other states' laws, the DAPs' non-California claims 16 would not satisfy the requirements of due process. Defs.' Joint 17 Obj'ns at 9-10. The DAPs ask the Court to adopt the R&R on this 18 point. DAP Mot. to Adopt at 3-5.

19 AT&T addressed what factual allegations district courts should 20 consider in determining whether due process limits the application
21 of a given state's law. The specific question before the Ninth 22 Circuit in AT&T was whether a district court was correct to 23 consider the "relevant occurrence or transaction," for due process 24 purposes in an antitrust case under California law, as being 25 limited to the price-fixed good's place of purchase. AT&T, 707 26 F.3d at 1109. The district court had held that because an 27 antitrust plaintiff's purchase of the allegedly price-fixed good 28 occurred outside California, due process prevented the application

1 of California law to the defendants even though some conspiratorial
2 activity had occurred in California. Id. The Ninth Circuit held 3 that such a narrow consideration was improper, based partly on the 4 fact that Allstate set a permissive standard for due process
5 considerations compared to the former standard that tied state 6 laws' applicability to the place of purchase. Id. at 1113. The 7 Ninth Circuit concluded that "anticompetitive conduct by a 8 defendant within a state that is related to a plaintiff's alleged 9 injuries and is not 'slight and casual' establishes a 'significant 10 aggregation of contacts, creating state interests, such that choice 11 of its law is neither arbitrary nor fundamentally unfair.'" Id. at 12 1113.

13 Defendants argue that AT&T's reasoning was narrowly restricted 14 to Cartwright Act claims, based on the Ninth Circuit's specific 15 holding about the case below, but they ignore the case's broader 16 affirmation of the Allstate standard and the guidance it provides 17 to district courts. Nothing in AT&T or Judge Illston's 18 consideration of it on remand limits AT&T's application to 19 California or the Cartwright Act. Defendants' argument that AT&T's
20 reasoning does not apply outside California is an inaccurate 21 reading of the case, and an inaccurate statement of the law, since 22 AT&T effectively reaffirms the decades-old rule from Allstate.

23 There remains, however, the threshold question of whether 24 Defendants properly raise the theories on which they base their 25 objections to the Special Master's R&R. Their arguments before him 26 were, again, premised on their theory that some states' antitrust 27 and consumer protection laws cannot apply to Defendants if the DAPs 28 do not allege purchases or negotiations in those particular states.

1 See R&R at 8-9. The Special Master denied Defendants' motion on 2 those grounds because it relied on a theory the Ninth Circuit
3 expressly overruled in AT&T. Defendants' arguments in this round 4 of briefing are newly raised, because Defendants did not make the 5 same arguments in their motion to dismiss or before the Special 6 Master. However, Defendants maintain in their reply brief that the 7 core of their arguments before the Special Master and in these 8 papers is the same: "certain of the DAPs' claims must be dismissed 9 because they do not sufficiently allege the appropriate contacts 10 with the relevant states at issue." Defs.' Joint Reply at 3.

11 The Court finds, in this particular case, that there is no
12 good reason to ignore a fully briefed argument on procedural 13 grounds. Moreover, the parties' briefs before the Special Master 14 discuss essentially these same issues in detail. The DAPs have 15 always contended that Allstate's contacts analysis has been the 16 right one,<sup>5</sup> as the Ninth Circuit affirmed in AT&T, and while 17 Defendants' argument has changed during this briefing round, both 18 sides adequately addressed the issues. See DAP Opp'n to Defs.' MTD 19 at 24-25 & nn.26-28 (arguing that all of the DAPs' complaints meet 20 Allstate's standard). Essentially, AT&T affirms that the Court's 21 due process analysis in cases like this one should proceed as it
22 has since Allstate's decision in 1982. As noted above, the Court 23 has found that AT&T is applicable to the parties' arguments, so the 24 question is whether the DAPs' pleadings survive a due process 25 challenge.

26 ///

---

27
28 <sup>5</sup> See, e.g., DAP Opp'n to Defs.' Mot. at 24 n.23 (confirming the DAPs' consistent position that plaintiffs' purchasing activities are not the only relevant contacts for due process purposes).

1 Accordingly, the central question in this case is whether the 2 DAPs have alleged anticompetitive conduct by Defendants within a 3 state that is related to the DAPs' alleged injuries and is not 4 "slight and casual," thereby establishing a "significant 5 aggregation of contracts, creating state interests, such that 6 choice of its law is neither arbitrary nor fundamentally unfair."
7 See AT&T, 707 F.3d at 1113 (quoting Allstate, 449 U.S. at 312-13).
8 In undertaking this analysis, the Court is to consider more than 9 just the place where an allegedly price-fixed product was 10 purchased. See id. at 1111-12. Defendants argue that the DAPs' 11 claims under all state laws fail to allege facts tying Defendants' 12 alleged anticompetitive conduct to any of the states under whose 13 laws the DAPs seek relief. See Defs.' Joint Reply at 3. According 14 to Defendants, this Court has found such pleading defects to 15 warrant dismissal in cases like this one. Id. (citing In re TFT-16 LCD, Nos. M 07-1827 SI, C 10-4945 SI, 2013 WL 1891367, at *4 (N.D.
17 Cal. May 6, 2013)).

18 Defendants are wrong on this point as well. They rely on In 19 re TFT-LCD, 2013 WL 1891367, in part, to argue that the DAPs'
20 pleadings of state-specific purchases and general conspiratorial 21 activities are insufficient to tie Defendants to the states at 22 issue in this case, but that decision is factually inapposite here.
23 As noted above, the question in that case was whether plaintiffs 24 could, within the bounds of due process, bring state antitrust 25 claims against defendants who had not sold goods within a state but 26 had allegedly conducted some conspiracy-related business there.
27 See id. at *1-2. On remand after AT&T, Judge Illston found that 28 the place of purchase alone was not dispositive: if there was no

1 purchase within a state, other activities related to the 2 plaintiffs' injury could warrant application of that state's laws
3 so long as it would not be arbitrary or unfair. Id. at *3-4.

4 That conclusion does not mean, however, that a purchase alone
5 is insufficient to merit application of a state's laws despite a 6 due process challenge. Defendants' arguments on this point muddle
7 the issue. Defendants seem to suggest that if the DAPs allege a 8 sale within a state, but do not include detailed, defendant-by-9 defendant allegations of anticompetitive conduct in those states, 10 due process would deny claims under those states' laws. Defs.'
11 Joint Obj'ns at 9-10. This misses the point of AT&T, which held 12 that absence of a sale within a state did not preclude the 13 application of that state's antitrust laws if other facts
14 sufficiently tied the defendants' activities to that state. AT&T 15 did not hold that an in-state sale alone could not satisfy due 16 process, especially when, in context, it would be proper under due 17 process to subject a defendant to the rules of that state.

18 Defendants also argue that AT&T does not apply to state laws
19 that address only the sale of price-fixed goods, but not agreements
20 or conspiracies involving those goods. Defs.' Joint Obj'ns at 9-10 21 & n.5. This argument fails. Defendants provide no support for 22 their restrictive interpretations of those states' laws. Moreover, 23 their argument relies on the proposition that AT&T only applies to 24 the Cartwright Act, which is wrong.

25 In this case, the Court finds that Defendants' direction of 26 price-fixed goods into certain states renders Defendants subject to 27 those states' antitrust and consumer protection laws. The DAPs' 28 pleadings on this issue are somewhat bare, but not unacceptably so

1 in context.<sup>6</sup> The DAPs make it clear enough, for Rule 12(b)(6)
 2 purposes, that Defendants are alleged to have conspired to fix 3 prices on CRT Products and then sold those goods to businesses and 4 consumers in the various states alleged in the DAPs' complaints.
 5 This is not a slight and casual connection, nor is the application
 6 of those states' laws to Defendants' conduct arbitrary or unfair.
 7 See Allstate, 449 U.S. at 312-13; AT&T, 703 F.3d at 1113.

8 The Court ADOPTS the Special Master's recommendation on this 9 point, as modified above, and DENIES Defendants' motion to dismiss 10 the DAPs' state law claims on due process grounds. This does not 11 mean that future due process challenges are foreclosed, pending the 12 discovery of additional facts.

13 iii. Joint Motion to Dismiss Based on Prudential Standing

14 Defendants argued that DAPs' state law claims failed to meet 15 the requirements of prudential standing: (1) plaintiffs must assert 16 their own legal rights and interests, not those of others'; (2)
 17 courts will not adjudicate generalized grievances; and (3) 18 plaintiffs' claims must "fall within the zone of interests to be 19 protected or regulated by the statute or constitutional guarantee

---

21 <sup>6</sup> The DAPs' pleadings alleging sufficient contacts with the various 22 states at issue in this matter, including Defendants' alleged sales 23 of products and conspiratorial activities, appear in the following 24 complaints: CompuCom Compl. ¶¶ 11, 16, 18, 21, 31, 42, 47, 49, 59, 25 61-62, 67, 79, 173-76, 178, 187, 237-39, 242, 254, 256-67; Costco
 26 Compl. ¶¶ 12-14, 47-48, 53, 142-46; Electrograph FAC ¶¶ 16, 18-20, 27 27, 29, 36, 56, 61, 63, 73, 75, 77, 89, 189-92, 200, 251-53, 256, 28 260, 266, 269, 271-72, 276-77, 280; Office Depot Compl. ¶¶ 11, 18, 19, 49, 61-62, 66, 78, 172-75, 177, 186, 244-46, 249; Polaroid
 Compl. ¶¶ 4, 8, 9, 11, 18, 21, 189-91, 36, 46, 47, 60, 64, 166, 168, 194; Target Compl. ¶¶ 14, 16-19, 21, 22, 27, 29, 32-33, 37, 42, 49, 60, 65, 67, 77, 79-80, 85, 191-195, 203; Tweeter Compl. ¶¶
 11, 13, 16, 22, 25, 27, 35, 40, 45, 50, 52, 62-65, 69, 79, 171, 175-78, 180, 189; Best Buy Compl. ¶¶ 11, 13-16, 20-21, 27, 29, 37, 42, 47, 54-57, 61, 81, 176, 180-185, 194, 238; P.C. Richard Compl.
 ¶¶ 11, 14-15, 17-18, 21, 24, 27, 29, 37, 42, 47, 52, 54, 64-67, 71, 81, 173, 177-80, 182, 191, 238, 246, 247, 248, 249.

1 in question." Defs.' Joint Mot. at 21 (citing Valley Forge
2 Christian Coll. v. Americans United for Separation of Church &
3 State, Inc., 454 U.S. 464, 474-75 (1982)). While the Special 4 Master found that the DAPs asserted their own legal rights and did 5 not bring generalized grievances, he made no finding as to the 6 "zone of interests" factor. R&R at 7-8. Rather, he concluded that 7 Defendants' request for dismissal was too broad and general because 8 it did not demonstrate which of the DAPs' claims, and under the 9 laws of which states, were allegedly deficient. Id. at 8. He 10 recommended that the Court deny Defendants' motion on this point, 11 because it would not be supported by the record and could sweep too 12 broadly.

13 Defendants object to the R&R's recommendations, arguing that 14 they specifically identified the DAPs' state law claims in Appendix 15 C to their original motion to dismiss and that those claims are 16 insufficient to establish that the DAPs purchased CRT Products in 17 the relevant states. Defs.' Joint Obj'ns at 11; Defs.' Joint MTD
18 App'x C. Specifically, Defendants argue that one group of DAPs did 19 not allege purchases of CRT Products in states where they filed 20 claims, and another asserted only conclusory or insufficient
21 allegations that they purchased CRT Products in the relevant 22 states. Id. at 12-16.

23 The DAPs ask the Court to adopt the R&R, arguing that 24 Defendants' arguments about the "zone of interests" are the same as 25 their due process arguments and should be dismissed for the same 26 reasons. DAP Mot. to Adopt at 7.

27 The DAPs are right. Defendants' arguments repeat their due 28 process arguments. Those arguments fail both here and there. See

1 Section IV.B.iii supra. The Court finds that the DAPs' pleadings
2 satisfy the prudential standing requirements. Defendants' motion
3 is DENIED on these grounds, and the Court ADOPTS the Special
4 Master's R&R on this point, though the Court MODIFIES the Special 5 Master's recommendation on the zone of interest.

6 iv. Joint Motion to Dismiss Based on Associated General
7 Contractors

8 Defendants move to dismiss the DAPs' claims for lack of 9 standing under California, Washington, Arizona, Illinois, and 10 Michigan law, arguing that dismissal is required under Associated 11 General Contractors v. California State Counsel of Carpenters
12 ("AGC"), 459 U.S. 519 (1983). Defs.' MTD at 23-25. The DAPs
13 concede that AGC applies to their California and Washington claims, 14 but they argue that AGC does not apply to their Arizona, Michigan, 15 and Illinois claims. DAP Opp'n at 26.

16 AGC established a multi-factor test for determining whether a 17 given plaintiff is a proper party to bring a private antitrust 18 action. 459 U.S. at 535, 537-44 & n.1. The factors are: "(1) the 19 nature of the plaintiff's alleged injury; that is, whether it was 20 the type the antitrust laws were intended to forestall; (2) the 21 directness of the injury; (3) the speculative measure of the harm; 22 (4) the risk of duplicative recovery; and (5) the complexity in 23 apportioning damages." Id. at 535; see also Lucas Auto. Eng'g, 24 Inc. v. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc., 140 F.3d 1228, 1232 (9th Cir.
25 1998) (citing AGC).

26 Defendants contend that AGC applies to the DAPs' claims under 27 Arizona, Illinois, and Michigan law, and that the DAPs have not 28 satisfied the AGC factors for those states' claims. Defs.' Joint

1 Mot. to Adopt at 4-15. The DAPs respond that AGC should not apply
2 to any of those claims. The Special Master concluded on this point 3 that the DAPs do not participate in the market that they allege was 4 restrained, since they only pled that the CRTs themselves were 5 price-fixed, and they participated only in the CRT Products market.
6 R&R at 10. For this reason, he found that the DAPs do not meet the 7 "antitrust injury" factor of the AGC analysis. Id. He therefore 8 recommended that the DAPs' allegations under the antitrust laws of 9 California, Illinois, Michigan, Arizona, and Washington be 10 dismissed with leave to amend so that the DAPs can file an amended 11 complaint adequately alleging standing under AGC. Id. at 11.
12 Defendants now move to adopt the Special Master's recommendation, 13 and the DAPs object.

14 In their objections to the Special Master's conclusion, the 15 DAPs assert that under Ninth Circuit law, AGC is only applicable to 16 state antitrust claims when there is "clear directive" from the 17 state legislature or high court adopting AGC. DAP Reply: Joint at 18 3 (citing In re TFT-LCD, 586 F. Supp. 2d 1109, 1120-24 (N.D. Cal.
19 2008)). The DAPs claim that the Special Master erred in finding 20 only that "existing state law, whether it is by the highest court 21 or by an intermediate court, is the applicable authority." Id.
22 (quoting R&R at 11) (emphasis in original). The DAPs therefore 23 object to the Special Master's and Defendants' citations of 24 intermediate appellate and other court decisions in support of 25 AGC's application in this case -- they claim that absent a 26 statement from a state's highest authority, the Court should 27 abstain from applying AGC. Id. Defendants maintain that the 28 Special Master's recommendation is correct, because the five states

1 at issue here have all either applied AGC in intermediate appellate 2 decisions on antitrust standing, or adopted harmonization
3 provisions stating that their antitrust laws were to be construed
4 in accordance with federal law. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 4-5 5 & nn. 1-2.

6 The DAPs' argument that Ninth Circuit law requires more than 7 an intermediate appellate case to apply AGC to a state claim is 8 based partly on the Court's decision in In re CRT, 738 F. Supp. 2d 9 at 1023. That opinion did not stand for that proposition, and did 10 not analyze the same arguments the parties raise here. The Ninth 11 Circuit sets forth clear guidance on this matter: on questions of 12 state law, federal courts are bound by that state's highest court's 13 decision, but if that court has not decided an issue, the federal 14 court is to follow relevant intermediate appellate precedent unless 15 the federal court finds convincing evidence that the state's 16 supreme court would not follow it. Id. (citing United Broth. of 17 Carpenters & Joiners of Am. Local 586 v. NLRB, 540 F.3d 957, 963
18 (9th Cir. 2008); Ryman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 505 F.3d 993, 994
19 (9th Cir. 2007); Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell, 803 F.2d 1473, 1483
20 (9th Cir. 1986)).

21 The DAPs alternatively claim that Defendants fail to show that 22 AGC would be applied in the state courts of Michigan, Arizona, or 23 Illinois. First, they argue that the Michigan cases Defendants 24 cite are not published or precedentially binding. DAP Reply: Joint 25 at 4-5 (citing Michigan Court Rule 7.215(C)). Second, they contend 26 that Arizona's Supreme Court has held that AGC is not necessary to 27 determine indirect purchasers' standing in state antitrust law 28 claims, and also that Arizona's harmonization provision is

1 permissive, not mandatory. Id. at 5-6 (citing Bunker's Glass Co.
2 v. Pilkington PLC, 75 P.3d 99, 102, 133 (Ariz. 2003)). Finally,
3 they claim that the Illinois cases Defendants cite did not involve
4 AGC at all, and that an Illinois federal district court held AGC
5 inapplicable under Illinois law. Id. at 6 (citing In re
6 Aftermarket Filters Antitrust Litig., No. 08 C 4883, 2009 WL
7 3754041, at *7 (N.D. Ill. Nov. 5, 2009)).

8 The Court is not convinced by all of the DAPs' arguments.
9 First, while under Michigan's Court Rules an unpublished decision 10 is not necessarily binding under the principle of stare decisis, 11 such a decision is not worthless, especially if a higher court has 12 not spoken. The DAPs argue that the Court should ignore those 13 unpublished opinions based on People v. Reid, 233 Mich. App. 457, 14 474 (Mich. Ct. App. 1999). But that case states only that it is 15 inappropriate for another Michigan court to consider an unpublished 16 opinion (which was later overruled) substantively binding. Id.
17 The Court does not find this sufficient to ignore Ninth Circuit law
18 on how the Court is to address these issues. The Court has no
19 conclusive evidence that the Michigan Supreme Court would overrule 20 an intermediate appellate court's adoption of AGC, so the lower 21 court decisions Defendants cite are the Court's best guidance now.
22 Since that court adopted AGC, the Court sees no reason to hold that 23 Michigan law forbids doing so.

24 Second, the Court finds that the Arizona Supreme Court would 25 not apply AGC. Bunker's Glass indicates that Arizona has chosen to 26 provide broader protection to its citizens by allowing indirect
27 purchasers to bring antitrust suits under Arizona state law. 75
28 P.3d at 110. Further, even though the Arizona Supreme Court held

1 that while Arizona courts are free to follow more restrictive
2 federal laws on standing, that court itself declined to do so,
3 based largely on its understanding that the Arizona Constitution
4 and Arizona antitrust laws were designed to allow for more standing 5 than federal law. Id. at 102-03, 110. Therefore, even though an 6 intermediate appellate court in Arizona opted to apply AGC
7 standing, the Court finds that the Arizona Supreme Court would not 8 likely follow the same course. The sparse reasoning from the trial 9 court in Luscher v. Bayer AG, No. CV-2004-014835 (Ariz. Super. Ct.
10 Sept. 14, 2005), is not persuasive when compared to the higher 11 authority of Bunker's Glass. Accordingly, the DAPs who rely on 12 Arizona law are not required to meet AGC standing requirements.

13 Finally, the Court finds the DAPs' arguments about Illinois
14 law unconvincing. For example, the DAPs cite In re Aftermarket 15 Filters as having found AGC inapplicable to claims brought under 16 Illinois law, but that conclusion was based on the court's 17 rejection of the defendants' argument that the two classes of 18 purchasers participated in markets separate from the direct and 19 indirect purchasers. 2009 WL 3754041, at *7. The court did not 20 reject AGC because some aspect of Illinois law required doing so.
21 And while the DAPs are right that neither of Defendants' other two 22 cases directly apply the AGC factors, neither states that AGC is 23 inapplicable, and both suggest that it could apply in some cases.
24 County of Cook v. Philip Morris, Inc., 817 N.E. 2d 1039, 1045 (Ill.
25 App. Ct. 2004), cites AGC approvingly, and O'Regan v. Arbitration 26 Forums, Inc., 121 F.3d 1060, 1066 (7th Cir. 1997), states clearly 27 that federal antitrust standing rules apply under the Illinois
28 Antitrust Act. In this setting, the Court finds no convincing

1 evidence that the Illinois Supreme Court would not apply AGC.
2 Therefore the Special Master was correct in finding that AGC
3 applies to the DAPs' Illinois claims.

4 The question remains whether the DAPs meet AGC's requirements.
5 The Special Master found that they failed to do so because, as 6 purchasers of CRT Products but not CRTs themselves, they were not 7 participants in the same allegedly restrained market and therefore 8 could not demonstrate injury appropriate for antitrust standing
9 under AGC. R&R at 10-11. The Special Master concluded that, since 10 antitrust injury is essential to AGC's multi-factor analysis, the 11 DAPs fail to show standing based on the absence of that single, 12 significant factor. Id. at 11 (citing Bhan v. NME Hosp., Inc., 772 13 F.2d 1467, 1370 n.3 (9th Cir. 1985) ("[T]he inquiry whether the 14 plaintiff has suffered an injury of the type which the antitrust 15 statute was intended to forestall is a factor of tremendous 16 significance.")). The DAPs disagree, arguing that in the Ninth 17 Circuit, courts have "embraced antitrust standing in cases 18 involving component parts and their corresponding finished 19 products." DAPs' Reply: Joint at 7.

20 The DAPs cite to the Court's earlier order in this case 21 finding that the Direct Purchasers and Indirect Purchasers had 22 adequately pled antitrust standing. In re CRT, 738 F. Supp. 2d at 23 1023-25. The Special Master considered the DAPs' arguments and 24 found a distinction: in that case, the alleged conspiracy involved
25 both CRTs themselves and CRT Products, while the DAPs' complaints 26 concern only the CRTs themselves. R&R at 10 (citing Tr. 18-19).
27 The Special Master found that "[t]here is a real market 28 distinction, and hence a real legal distinction, between the

1 finished products and just the CRTs," and concluded that a 2 complaint that embraces only one of the two allegedly intertwined 3 products fails to show that an antitrust injury occurred within the 4 same allegedly restrained market. Id.

5 Defendants argue that the Special Master correctly found that 6 the DAPs' pleadings foreclosed the possibility of an antitrust
7 injury, and that the DAPs "have not alleged that the cost or price
8 of standalone CRT tubes are components that 'can easily be traced' 9 through relevant distribution channels, or that standalone CRT[s] 10 account for a specific percentage of the cost of manufacturing the 11 finished product." Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 11-12. The DAPs 12 respond, however, that regardless of what the pleadings say, the 13 market for CRTs themselves and CRT Products remain inextricably 14 intertwined. DAP Reply: Joint at 7-9. Further, the DAPs note that 15 their complaint alleges that CRTs are discrete, identifiable parts 16 of the CRT Product's supply chain, such that any CRT-related prices
17 and overcharges can be traced along with the physical CRT down a 18 chain of causation from allegedly anticompetitive conduct to 19 antitrust injury. Id. at 9 & n. 7 (citing relevant complaints).

20 The Court finds that, for purposes of the present motion, the 21 DAPs have sufficiently pled an antitrust injury, and that this 22 factor slightly favors standing. The Court finds that where a 23 product like a CRT itself is virtually valueless on its own, and 24 the markets for CRTs themselves and CRT products are plausibly pled 25 to be inextricably intertwined, a plaintiff adequately pleads an 26 antitrust injury when the alleged anticompetitive activity
27 surrounding a component affects the market for the finished product
28 in a traceable way. See, e.g., In re Flash Memory Antitrust

1 Litig., 643 F. Supp. 2d 1133, 1154 (N.D. Cal. 2009); In re GPU
2 Antitrust Litig., 540 F. Supp. 2d 1085, 1098 (N.D. Cal. 2007).
3 Accordingly, the Court respectfully declines to adopt the R&R on 4 this point.

5       The next step is to evaluate the other factors of AGC and 6 balance them. The first factor, discussed above, is very 7 significant but not dispositive. The second factor of AGC concerns 8 the directness of the DAPs' alleged injury. Defendants argue that 9 the DAPs' allegations fail to support a causal connection between 10 the allegedly anticompetitive and the claimed harm. See Defs.'
11 Joint Mot. to Adopt at 14. Their argument on this point, like 12 their argument for the remaining factors, is essentially a rehash 13 of their arguments about the differences between the markets for 14 CRTs themselves and for CRT Products. See id. at 14-15. The Court 15 has already found that the link between the two markets is enough, 16 at least at this stage, to make an allegation of antitrust harm
17 plausible. The Court finds that the DAPs' allegations of traceable 18 overcharges, given the severability of CRTs from CRT Products, are 19 sufficient to favor standing under this factor. Whether or not the 20 DAPs can actually prove that an overcharge would be passed down the 21 chain is a factual question for a later motion.

22       The third factor considers the speculative nature of the 23 alleged harm. As above, Defendants claim that the DAPs' 24 allegations of injury are "inherently speculative," since there is 25 no secondary market for CRTs themselves and mere allegations of 26 pass-on damages are insufficient to show non-speculative damages.
27 Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 15 (citing In re DRAM Antitrust 28 Litig., 516 F. Supp. 2d 1072, 1092 (N.D. Cal. 2007)). In In re

1 DRAM, this Court found that plaintiffs alleging injury related to 2 purportedly price-fixed Dynamic Random Access Memory ("DRAM")
3 lacked standing as to their purchases of DRAM in the form of a 4 component product, since tracing the price-fixed DRAM through the 5 component products would have been too attenuated in that case.
6 516 F. Supp. 2d at 1092-93. In this case, as a pleading matter,
7 the Court finds that the DAPs sufficiently allege that overcharges
8 are passed on to CRT Product purchasers in a traceable way, since 9 the market and physical distribution chain for CRTs are both 10 limited. Moreover, absent a more developed factual record, the 11 Court finds it inappropriate to determine "complex and intensely 12 factual" damages issues without "a more fully developed factual 13 record." See In re GPU, 540 F. Supp. 2d at 1098. The Court makes 14 the same findings as to traceability and apportionability under the 15 fourth and fifth factors, which can be condensed and considered 16 alongside each other. See, e.g., AGC, 459 U.S. at 544.

17 Accordingly, the Court finds that the DAPs meet AGC's standing 18 requirements. As noted above, the DAPs have conceded that the 19 principles of AGC apply in California and Washington, and the Court 20 has found that Arizona does not apply AGC but allows for suits of 21 the DAPs' type. Therefore, the Court respectfully declines to 22 adopt the Special Master's recommendations on this point, and 23 DENIES Defendants' motion on this issue.

24 ///

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1                   v.           Other Joint Motions Asserted

2                   a.           Massachusetts and Washington Consumer
3                   Protection Statutes

4           Defendants move to dismiss the DAPs' claims under 5   Massachusetts's and Washington's consumer protection statutes.

6                   1.           Massachusetts

7           To bring a claim under the Massachusetts Consumer Protection 8   Act ("MCPA"), a plaintiff must first have served a written demand 9   for relief on a defendant at least thirty days before filing the 10   action if that defendant has a place of business or keeps assets in 11   Massachusetts. Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A §§ 2, 9. The Special 12   Master, noting that the Court has dismissed earlier claims under 13   Massachusetts law for failing to provide notice, found that the 14   DAPs' case was similarly deficient. R&R at 12. He recommended 15   that the Court dismiss the Massachusetts claims without leave to 16   amend, because the DAPs do not plead or provide evidence showing 17   that they provided the requisite statutory notice to any 18   Massachusetts-linked Defendants. Id. Defendants ask the Court to 19   adopt that recommendation. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 17-19.
20   The DAPs claim that the Court should reject the Special Master's 21   recommendation, arguing that thirty-seven of the thirty-nine 22   Defendants are located outside Massachusetts and are not subject to 23   the MCPA's notice requirement. DAP Reply: Joint at 12-13.

24           A review of the transcript, the parties' briefs, and the 25   relevant case law reveals a serious factual question as to whether 26   any of the DAPs ever sent notice (and whether, if sent, it was 27   proper notice under the law). The complaints do not plead that any 28   DAP bringing an MCPA claim sent notice, and the DAPs do not claim

1 that they did. See DAP Reply: Joint at 12-13. The DAPs
2 essentially put the burden on Defendants to show that they 3 maintained a place of business or kept assets in Massachusetts.
4 Id. To support this argument they cite a memorandum decision from 5 a Massachusetts trial court. The Court is not convinced by this 6 argument: the DAPs should have done their research and provided the 7 requisite notice. However, to the extent that the DAPs claim that 8 they can cure their pleading defect, the Court finds that the DAPs 9 should have leave to amend their Massachusetts claims to show that 10 they followed the law. The Court therefore ADOPTS the R&R on this 11 point, as modified.

12 2. Washington

13 Washington forbids indirect purchasers from bringing their own 14 actions under the Washington consumer protection statute. R&R at 15 12. The DAPs claim, however, that Washington's harmonization 16 provision, Wash. Rev. Code § 19.86.920, requires the Court to 17 evaluate claims under Washington law by applying Illinois Brick and 18 finding that an exception to it applies here. DAP Reply: Joint at 19 14. Defendants argue that no case law or legislation supports the 20 argument that Illinois Brick exceptions are applicable to claims 21 under the Washington Consumer Protection Act. Neither party cites 22 case law to support their position, and the Court declines to make 23 law, especially since the R&R is sound and Washington law's 24 prohibition of indirect actions would seem to override any 25 suggestion of an Illinois Brick loophole being read into the 26 state's harmonization provision. The Court ADOPTS the Special
27 Master's recommendation and DISMISSES the DAPs' Washington law 28 claims without leave to amend.

b. Common Laws of Unjust Enrichment

Some of the DAPs pled claims for unjust enrichment under the common law, not the unjust enrichment laws of particular states. The Special Master found, correctly, that the common law of unjust enrichment is not uniform and is subject to definition by the states. R&R at 13. He accordingly recommended that the Court dismiss these complaints with leave to amend, so that the DAPs have the opportunity to identify which states' laws support their unjust enrichment claims. The DAPs object to this recommendation, arguing that at least the Polaroid DAPs' unjust enrichment claims are specifically based on the laws of Minnesota and California. DAP Obj'ns: Joint at 19-20. Defendants move to adopt the recommendation of dismissal, arguing that the Polaroid DAPs never indicate under which state's law their claims arise, even though they were able to point to specific laws for other claims. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 21. Defendants claim that if the Court accepted the DAPs' argument, the DAPs would essentially be allowed to sidestep Rule 8's requirement that plaintiffs make short, plain statements of their claims. Id. at 21-22.

The Court agrees with Defendants and the Special Master. If any of the DAPs wanted to state claims for unjust enrichment under a particular state's law, they should have done so. The Court cannot infer what DAPs intended. The Court ADOPTS the Special Master's recommendation on this point and dismisses the Polaroid DAPs' unjust enrichment claims with leave to amend. Contrary to what the DAPs claim, requiring adherence to the rules of procedure is not unnecessary "make work." The DAPs need not file an amended complaint if they find it too onerous a task. The DAPs should,

1 however, read the following section carefully in considering 2 whether to amend their complaints for unjust enrichment claims.

3 c. California Restitution and Unjust Enrichment
4 Laws

5 DAP Circuit City alleges that Defendants violated California's 6 laws for restitution and unjust enrichment. Defendants moved to 7 dismiss these claims because California law does not provide for 8 standalone restitution or unjust enrichment claims. The Special 9 Master noted correctly that California courts are divided on this 10 issue, but recommended that these claims be dismissed without leave 11 to amend, since California law provides specific and adequate 12 remedies for these claims via the Cartwright Act. R&R at 13. The 13 DAPs urge that the Court follow the line of cases allowing unjust 14 enrichment and restitution to be pled as independent causes of 15 action, arguing that the difference is merely semantic and that the 16 Court should not determine the adequacy of alternative remedies at 17 this stage of litigation. DAP Obj'ns: Joint at 20-21; DAP Reply:
18 Joint at 14-17. Defendants move to adopt the Special Master's 19 recommendation. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 23-26.

20 The Court agrees with Defendants and the Special Master that 21 these equitable remedies are duplicative where the DAPs' statutory 22 claims provide adequate relief at law. The Court ADOPTS the 23 Special Master's recommendation and DISMISSES Circuit City's 24 restitution and unjust enrichment claims without leave to amend.

25 d. California's UCL

26 Defendants move to dismiss the Circuit City, CompuCom, and 27 Polaroid DAPs' claims for alleged violations of California's 28 statutory Unfair Competition Law ("UCL"), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§

1 17200 et seq. The Special Master recommended that this motion be 2 dismissed because the DAPs' complaints allege antitrust violations 3 (even if they are subject to exceptions or special applications), 4 such that the Special Master could not conclude that no DAP alleged 5 any valid antitrust claims on which they could predicate a UCL
6 claim. R&R at 13. Neither party addresses this recommendation.
7 The Court, having considered the briefs and the Special Master's 8 R&R, ADOPTS the Special Master's recommendation and DENIES 9 Defendants' motion to dismiss on these grounds.

10 e. State Laws Repealing Illinois Brick

11 Defendants move to dismiss the DAPs' state law claims under 12 Nebraska, Nevada, and New York law, arguing that the DAPs cannot 13 sue for purchases prior to the date that those states passed 14 statutes repealing Illinois Brick. The DAPs concede that they lack 15 standing under New York law based on purchases prior to December 3, 16 1998, so the Special Master recommended that the Court dismiss 17 those claims with prejudice. R&R at 14. The Court ADOPTS that 18 recommendation and DISMISSES the DAPs' New York claims based on 19 pre-December 3, 1998 purchases with prejudice.

20 As to Nebraska and Nevada, the Special Master noted that the 21 Court has already held that indirect purchasers lack standing under 22 those states' laws for purchases predating Nebraska's and Nevada's 23 respective Illinois Brick repeal statutes. Id. (citing In re CRT, 24 738 F. Supp. 2d at 1025). Since the DAPs cited no new reasons why 25 the Court should not apply the same analysis in this case, the 26 Special Master recommended that the Court dismiss with prejudice 27 the DAPs' claims based on purchases predating Nebraska's and 28 Nevada's repeal statutes. The DAPs dispute this recommendation,

1 arguing that recent cases offer new interpretations of the DAPs'
2 arguments. See DAP Obj'ns: Joint at 22-23.

3 First, the DAPs argue that the Court is bound by Arthur v.
4 Microsoft Corp., 676 N.W.2d 29 (Neb. 2004), in which the Nebraska
5 Supreme Court reversed dismissal of claims predating Nebraska's 6 2002 repealer statute. DAP Reply: Joint at 18-20. On this point, 7 the DAPs contend that the Court should follow Judge Illston's
8 decision from In re TFT-LCD Antitrust Litigation, No. M 07-1827 SI, 9 C 10-4945 SI, 2011 WL 3738985, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 24, 2011), 10 which held that even though Arthur considered claims brought under 11 Nebraska's Consumer Protection Act, its reasoning extends to 12 Nebraska antitrust claims, since Arthur indicated that Nebraska law
13 was never meant to be harmonized with Illinois Brick. Defendants 14 cite several cases and a section of judicial history, which to them 15 suggests that Nebraska's 2002 amendment of its antitrust law to 16 provide indirect-purchaser standing meant that no such standing 17 existed before 2002. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 27-28. The 18 Court disagrees, based on the clear language from Arthur and Judge 19 Illston's reasoning in In re TFT-LCD. The Court's prior ruling on 20 this issue is not law of the case, since the Indirect Purchaser 21 Plaintiffs ("IPPs") did not object to the Special Master's 22 recommendation of a dismissal of the pre-2002 Nebraska claims, and 23 so the issue was neither briefed nor fully discussed by the Special 24 Master or the Court. There was, essentially, no controversy before 25 the Court at that time. The Court therefore respectfully declines 26 to adopt the R&R on this point, and DENIES Defendants' motion to 27 dismiss the DAPs' Nebraska claims based on pre-2002 purchases.

28 Second, the DAPs argue that the Court should read Nevada's

1 1999 amendment as merely clarifying who may bring suit under the 2 Nevada Unfair Trade Practices Act, not as changing the standing 3 requirements to require indirect purchasers to sue for their 4 antitrust injuries. DAP Reply: Joint at 20-21. Defendants claim 5 that legislative history supports the interpretation that the 6 statute meant to cut off claims for purchases made before 1999, and 7 that Nevada's high court presumes that statutes apply prospectively 8 and that the legislature intends to change (not just clarify) law
 9 when it amends statutes. Defs.' Joint Mot. to Adopt at 30-31
 10 (citing In re Estate of Thomas, 998 P.2d 560, 562 (Nev. 2000); 11 McKay v. Bd. of Supervisors, 730 P.2d 438, 442 (Nev. 1986)).

12 The Court agrees with Defendants. As Judge Illston held in In 13 re TFT-LCD, the Nevada Unfair Trade Practices Act ("UTPA") has a 14 harmonization provision, Nev. Rev. Stat. § 598A.050, and the Nevada 15 Supreme Court would likely interpret the UTPA "in harmony" with 16 Illinois Brick. In re TFT-LCD, 2011 WL 3738985, at *3. The Court 17 finds no convincing high court evidence to the contrary, and is not 18 persuaded by the lower court cases that the DAPs cite. The Court 19 ADOPTS the R&R on this point and GRANTS Defendants' motion to 20 dismiss the DAPs' Nevada claims based on purchases that occurred 21 before October 1, 1999.

22 C. Philips and LG's Separate Joint Motion to Dismiss

23 The Philips and LG Defendants filed a separate joint motion to 24 dismiss the DAPs' complaints. See Philips MTD at 5-14; LG Joinder
 25 at 1-2. The critical differences in this motion concern Philips
 26 and LG's joint venture, LGDP (a.k.a. "LP Displays" or "LPD").
 27 According to the DAPs' complaints, Philips transferred its entire 28 CRT business to LGDP in the form of a 50/50 joint venture with LG.

1 E.g., Best Buy Compl. ¶ 46.<sup>7</sup> At this point, Philips's only 2 connection to the alleged cartel was through LGDP. Id. ¶ 150. In 3 January 2006, LGDP went bankrupt. R&R at 15. In March or April 4 2007, it "became an independent company," and its shares were 5 "owned by financial institutions and private equity firms," not by 6 Philips or LG. Best Buy Compl. ¶¶ 36, 40; R&R at 15.

7 The Special Master found that the January 2006 bankruptcy and 8 March 2007 divestment amounted to Philips and LG's withdrawal from 9 the alleged conspiracy. R&R at 14-15. Further, the Special Master 10 found that the DAPs had failed to show that the relevant state and 11 federal statutes of limitations should be tolled, because they had 12 failed to sufficiently allege fraudulent concealment. Id. at 15.
13 According to the Special Master, the DAPs have had the benefit of 14 four years of pleadings, motions, and discovery in this case, and 15 so a conclusory pleading of fraudulent concealment, addressed to 16 all Defendants generally but not the unusual circumstances of 17 Philips and LG particularly, was insufficient. Id. Accordingly, 18 the Special Master recommended that the Court dismiss the DAPs' 19 state and federal claims against Philips and LG.

20 Philips and LG ask the Court to adopt that recommendation, but 21 they claim that they actually withdrew from the conspiracy by June 22 2001, when they ceased participating directly in the CRT market and 23 formed LGPD. See Philips Mot. to Adopt at 1-3. According to 24 Philips and LG, this would bar all of the DAPs' state and federal 25 claims on statute of limitations grounds. Id. at 17-33.
26 Specifically, Philips and LG contend that even if the Court found

---

27
28 <sup>7</sup> Obviously, there are multiple complaints in this particular matter, but the Special Master used Best Buy's complaint as an exemplar and the parties do the same. So will the Court.

1 cross-jurisdictional tolling applicable based on the DPP Class's
2 November 2007 filing -- which they argue the Court should not do --
3 the June 2001 date is still outside any applicable limitations 4 period. Id. at 23-24. Philips and LG also state that since the 5 DAPs fail to plead fraudulent concealment as to Philips and LG in 6 particular, no possible tolling argument can save any of the DAPs' 7 claims. Id. at 18-22, 29-33.

8 The DAPs claim that the Special Master erred in finding that 9 Philips and LG withdrew from the conspiracy and by finding that the 10 DAPs failed to allege fraudulent concealment. DAP Obj'ns: Philips 11 & LG at 6-14. The DAPs also argue that their federal claims and 12 state law claims were tolled as of November 26, 2007, and that 13 cross-jurisdictional tolling would extend the DAPs' claims back to 14 November 2003. Id. at 14-17.

15 The Court finds that the parties' withdrawal and fraudulent 16 concealment arguments raise factual questions inappropriate for 17 decision at this stage. Too many of the parties' arguments depend 18 on the resolution of factual disputes about Philips and LG's stakes 19 in LPD, the actual involvement of Philips and LG in LPD and the 20 conspiracy, and so forth. The Court finds that the DAPs' 21 allegations of fraudulent concealment, in context, are sufficient 22 under Rule 9(b). Indeed, in a highly complex, long-running 23 antitrust conspiracy case like this one, it is likely that further 24 information about the extent of two parties' involvement is in 25 those parties' hands, awaiting discovery (or potentially not).
26 "[I]t is generally inappropriate to resolve the fact-intensive 27 allegations of fraudulent concealment at the motion to dismiss 28 stage, particularly when the proof relating to the extent of the

1 fraudulent concealment is alleged to be largely in the hands of the 2 alleged conspirators." In re Rubber Chems. Antitrust Litig., 504
3 F. Supp. 2d 777, 789 (N.D. Cal. 2007). Similarly, the withdrawal 4 dispute hinges on facts about Philips and LG's involvement in their 5 joint venture, and the Court cannot resolve such a dispute at this 6 point. Id. at 1025. Accordingly, the Court respectfully declines 7 to adopt the R&R on this point, and denies Defendants' motion. The 8 Court also declines to address American Pipe tolling at this time.
9 See supra Section IV.b.i.

10 11 V. CONCLUSION

12 For the reasons explained above, the Court approves and adopts 13 the Special Master's recommendation in part, and modifies it in 14 part. As to the above-captioned Defendants' motions to dismiss the 15 Direct Action Plaintiffs' complaints, the Court ORDERS as follows:

- 16 • Defendants' motion to dismiss the DAPs' Complaints is 17 GRANTED to the extent that it challenges the DAPs'
18 alleged right to proceed under the "cost-plus" and "co-19 conspirator" exceptions to Illinois Brick.
- 20 • Defendants' motion to dismiss the DAPs' Complaints is 21 DENIED to the extent that it challenges the DAPs' right 22 to proceed under the "ownership or control" exception to 23 Illinois Brick, but this Order expresses no view as to 24 whether the DAPs will be able to prove what is needed to 25 establish that exception with respect to their purchases
26 of finished products containing CRTs. Defendants' joint 27 motion to dismiss does not presently challenge the 28 adequacy of the DAPs' allegations of ownership or control, and the Court makes no ruling on that issue. Defendants' joint motion does not presently raise the issue of the application of the statute of limitations to the federal claims.

- Defendants' joint motion to dismiss the DAPs' claims based on state statutes of limitation is DENIED.
- Defendants' joint motion to dismiss the DAPs' claims based on prudential standing is DENIED.
- Defendants' joint motion to dismiss the DAPs' claims based on due process is DENIED.
- Defendants' joint motion to dismiss the DAPs' state law claims based on Associated General Contractors is DENIED.
- The DAPs' Massachusetts claims under the state consumer protection statute are DISMISSED with leave to amend.
- The DAPs' claims brought under Washington law are DISMISSED with prejudice.
- The DAPs' claims for common law unjust enrichment are DISMISSED with leave to amend, with the limitations described above.
- The DAPs' claims for restitution and unjust enrichment under California law are DISMISSED with prejudice.
- Defendants' motion to dismiss the DAPs' UCL claims is DENIED.
- The DAPs' New York claims based on pre-December 3, 1998 purchases are DISMISSED with prejudice.
- Defendants' motion to dismiss the DAPs' claims under Nebraska law based on pre-2002 purchases is DENIED.
- The DAPs' Nevada law claims that are premised on purchases predating October 1, 1999, are DISMISSED with prejudice.

- Philips and LG's motion to dismiss the DAPs' claims as to them is DENIED.
- Per the Special Master's recommendation, given the profusion of underlying motions and arguments regarding these Defendants' motions to dismiss the DAP Complaints, any motions from these parties' briefs that were not discussed in this Order or the R&R are DENIED without prejudice.

If the DAPs choose to file amended complaints for any of the claims noted above, they must do so within thirty (30) days of this Order's signature date. Failure to do so may result in the deficient claims' dismissal with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: August 21, 2013

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE